

FLYNN HAD A SMILE BUT NO INTERVIEW

Little Shy on Information About That Scandal

INVOLVING MR. JENKINS

Secretary Grimes Puts Him Above Suspicion.

IS NOT A SORDID MAN

What He Did Was for Good of the People.

Mr. D. T. Flynn, delegate to Congress from Oklahoma, was at the Santa Fe depot for ten minutes yesterday, returning from Washington. He made a flying visit to the National Capital in the interest of a friend who, by the way, is not an Oklahoman. Mr. Flynn looks well and he was feeling as if he had done his friend some good. He enjoys nothing better than helping another fellow.

He did not seem to be troubled any by the situation in Oklahoma. When asked for utterance relative to charges against Governor Jenkins he said: "I have been out of the territory for more than a week and I don't know what the boys are saying about him. I presume you know as much about what is going on down there as I do."

"But what about Washington. What are they saying about the charges there?" Mr. Flynn turned that famous smile of his on the reporter as much as to say: "I haven't heard the subject mentioned since I left Oklahoma."

Premised for an utterance Mr. Flynn jumped on the moving train saying, ride down to the crossing with me and I will tell you all I know."

As the crossing was only a few hundred feet the assumption is that he didn't know much about the subject.

Mr. Flynn was accompanied to Guthrie by Mr. and Mrs. Victor Murdock who will be guests of the delegates' family over Sunday.

Two hours later Territorial Secretary William Grimes was seen at the Rock Island depot en route to Kingfisher to spend Sunday. He seems to think that nothing can possibly come out of the charges made against Governor Jenkins.

"If the Governor actually admitted to me that he was into an illegal and improper transaction in the Sanitarium matter I would doubt him," said Mr. Grimes. "Mr. Jenkins is absolutely above suspicion so far as I am concerned. He is incapable of sharp practice such as that with which he is charged. Those who know the governor know well that he is not sordid. Had he been disposed to act in the interest of his pocket he would not have left the secretary's office after four years, practically without a dollar. He barely saved enough to pay off a few little boom debts he owed in Arkansas City. And the Governor is not a spendthrift. Nobody has ever known him to be extravagant. His wife is generous in her little charities among the poor of Guthrie, but she is by no means extravagant. The idea of Governor Jenkins going into the so-called Sanitarium deal in the interest of his pocket would seem to you, if you knew him, to be the essence of absurdity. The truth is that Mr. Jenkins did what he did in the Sanitarium matter absolutely without an idea of benefiting and improving the condition of the unfortunate, believing at the same time to be acting in the interest of the people."

Mr. Grimes, when asked about natural conditions in the territory stated that Oklahoma was never in such excellent shape, in financial and business affairs. The country banks are overflowing with money. The farmers are prosperous and their outlook for the future year is very bright. In the new country conditions are very satisfactory with the single exception that there is an apparent inclination there to treat the negro unfairly. Some of them who drew land legitimately under the drawing plan have been intimidated, but I am satisfied the government will protect them in their rights as citizens and home-owners."

"About statehood," Mr. Grimes repeated "I do not think Oklahoma will be admitted at the coming session of Congress. The situation in that respect is complex. There is probably enough show of logic in the statehood question to prevent any real objection against admission of Oklahoma alone and not enough, perhaps, considering the civilization of the two sections to justify the immediate creation of a single state. Congress will probably hesitate and I doubt if any action will be taken although I believe there will be a bill introduced. It would be the solution of the anomalous relations of the two territories."

Col. Boles, of the Guthrie land office, and Postmaster Crawford of Perry were also in town and went down on the 4:30 Santa Fe. Mr. Crawford said that Perry is progressing steadily in the expansion of its commercial constituency. He says it draws trade from a long distance and that the business of the town was never more stable. Four years ago the income of the Perry postoffice was a salary of only $1,500; now it is $2,300. This exemplifies, although not adequately, the increased business of the town.

FIDDLER MAYOR IN.

Won't Adopt Revolutionary Policies in Municipal Affairs.

San Francisco, Nov. 9.—San Francisco's mayor-elect, Eugene L. Schmitz, "the middle striver," today, as he chose to express it, and began to prepare himself for the work of managing the affairs of a big city.

His first act was to assure the public that he would not adopt a revolutionary policy in municipal affairs, even though his first occupation has been nothing more practical than that of a musician and his backing in his campaign had been entirely that of organized labor. He issued a statement to the effect that his aim would be to harmonize all interests, and that he would move slowly and conservatively.

The "middle striver" is what Mr. Schmitz bids fair to be called in the future annals of San Francisco, no matter how successful or how unsuccessful his administration may be, and that despite the fact that he cannot be said of him that he studied himself into office.

It was not for the sweet strains of his violin, nor because of his skill in conducting the orchestra of Columbia theater that he was nominated by the Union Labor party and elected to the city's highest office, but because all of his music was "union" through and through. As president of the musicians union, and then as secretary of a little manufacturing company, he had given the workmen of San Francisco to believe that they could depend upon him from alpha to omega as union man, and that was all that was needed.

If it had not been for the great dock strike of last summer, which paralyzed all the city's business for nine weeks, he would never have had his chance for honor. That brought union labor together in solid array as it had never stood before in this city. That furnished the soil in which a union labor party sprang up and grew so rapidly that it was able to defeat both the regular political parties at once.

Neither Republican nor Democratic leaders would give the labor men the promises they wanted. Schmitz had failed for the Republican nomination for the petty office of tax collector. So the labor men joined hands and Schmitz became their leader. He got 21,000 ballots, and had a plurality of 5,100.

A big, imposing man is Schmitz, over six feet in height, and so built as to appear even taller. He is 37 years old, with long, wavy hair, brushed back in a musician's pompadour. His beard and mustache cannot conceal a pleasant smile, which lights up his whole face.

He is an athlete, given to 50-mile trips across country, fond of hunting and expert at fishing and swimming. He studied medicine, but liked music better, and for two years has been leader at the Columbia theater.

His only business experience has been in connection with the Economic Gas Engine company, of which he has been the secretary since last winter. There came a strike in May and he granted his machinists' demands. Other employers in his line cursed him and put him to sore trials to maintain his job. He came triumphantly and almost an idol in the eyes of the union laborers. He does not expect to have a harder task as mayor than he had as manufacturer in the early summer.

His party platform and his own views, to which he is able to give strong and sympathetic expression, commit him to a policy of municipal ownership, and especially to the operation and extension of the Geary street car line by the city in competition with the other street car systems. He stands also for the building of a big city waterworks system, for more and better public schools, for a reform in the police department, and for a business administration.

"Equal rights to all and special privileges to none," is the motto which he never tires of repeating as his favorite. He made today the following statement: "I wish to say to the merchants and financiers of the city, that they need entertain no fears whatever of any action upon my part tending to inaugurate a radical or revolutionary policy of municipal government. Invested capital will be protected, the consideration it deserves, and it will be my aim to see that business interests suffer nothing. I will consider all classes and try to harmonize all interests which stand for the upbuilding of San Francisco."

"It shall be my concern to see that the fair interests of labor men and organizations are fairly safeguarded, but in this there can be no detriment to legitimate business enterprises. Instead of trying to subvert the foundations of good municipal law, I shall simply try to carry out the law in a spirit of justice and equity. There will be some changes, but these will be made only after a careful study of the city's needs. I shall work for the improvement of streets, parks and public buildings."

ANSWERS ALL QUESTIONS.

Information Bureaus in Large Cities Are a Success.

An information bureau for large cities was projected as a profitable undertaking several years ago, the idea being to charge a small fee for the service, but none appears to have flourished. In Cleveland the idea has, however, been adopted by one of the local telephone companies with great success, being one of the most popular drawing cards of the company. The service is entirely gratuitous, and is utilized by all classes of people. The bureau has a special number, and the records show that it is called about twice as often as any other number on the board. It is under the head of a very clever young woman, Miss Blanch Ashley, of more than ordinary attainments. She has at her hand a well-equipped library, containing encyclopedias, dictionaries, handbooks, time tables, geographicals, histories, law and medicine works, directories of the large cities, car schedules, and similar reference matter.

Questions as they are asked are written out, together with the address and telephone number of the enquirer. Sometimes the question can be answered at once, but frequently other numbers have to be called and the information obtained. Most of the questions, as is quite natural, pertain to local matters, such as train schedules, information as to the whereabouts of one of the people of the city, or certain articles, the best routes to certain points, postal rates and similar inquiries. The location of fires is a frequent question and the results of sports, such as baseball scores and other local athletic events, are asked for many times a day.

Aside from these matters of common occurrence, comrades of a much wider range are asked, many of which require not a little trouble to secure the desired information.

The following list of questions is given in the Electrical World as among those of a single day's work:

What is the cost of a copyright?

How old is Olga Netherland?

Will the people of Cuba vote for the president of the United States?

To what countries do Greenland and Iceland belong?

May a man shoot a rabbit on his own land?

Is there any clause in the constitution permitting a woman to become president?

Will money lost in a registered letter be refunded by the government postal authorities?

TOUCH DOWNS WERE RAPID.

Famous Game of Football Between Norman and Fairmount.

Norman, O. T., Nov. 9.—Oklahoma played Fairmount, Wichita, on the University grounds at Norman, Friday, November 9th. Whoever said football was very much alive from the moment of the first kick-off. Oklahoma was in form and proved it. She spread Fairmount out on the gridiron, but her bow on the first half, then turned her over and strided her up on the other side to the crackle of 42-0. It wasn't a walk-away by any means, for Fairmount played ball, but they couldn't reach the soccer ball stop when it was caught. The game was swifter all through. At the very start Oklahoma made her game in regular succession, making the first touch-down in five minutes after the game was called. From that on the touch-downs in point of time were made in all the

The People are Catching On

They have solved the problem of where to buy their winter wraps. We realized that when the crowd of anxious buyers surged in yesterday morning, barely giving us time to uncover our goods, our low prices, superb qualities and styles are telling, when we show our $7.50 garment at $4.89. We only have to fit them on. Sold it is. They require no salesmen's eulogies; no special argument. Our garments speak for themselves. That is the way we like to sell goods. It keeps us busy. We are busybodies when it comes to selling merchandise. Don't forget it.

Ladies' Handkerchief Sale

Next Wednesday we will open a sale of Ladies' Handkerchiefs that will make the air warm while it lasts. We are warranted in this assertion because there are only 500 of them and it is safe to say there will be two customers for each Handkerchief. They are an importer's entire line of samples, perfectly fresh, a no two alike, not a speck or spot on them. At different prices, ranging from 5c up to $1 values. This sale will be on the basis of 25 per cent less than actual cost. We could sell them in the regular way at the regular prices, but samples interfere with regular stock, therefore prefer to dispose of them quickly and give our customers the benefit, and they will go rapidly. Now it is up to you to save money.

House Furnishings

Are You Up to Furs?

We place the same small margin of profit on our Fur Wear as we do on the outer garments—just a living profit. We are showing a magnificent line of popular Furs, in coneys, martens, seal, mink, fox, and all the fashionable skins. Our styles are right and our prices righteous.

Obesity Corpulence—To cure corpulence, take off the pressure; this is our motto. This is the universal remedy for all pathological conditions. If you desire to empty a lake open the outlet and take off or stop the supply of water above. I can positively reduce your flesh from ten to twelve pounds a week and leave you in perfect health.

The above is a cut of Dr. Evans' X Ray Static Machine, one of the finest in the state. He also has one of the largest hot air machines in the United States, and one of the best equipped offices in the city. He is the oldest Osteopath in the state and is prepared to give the most scientific treatment for all kinds of chronic diseases. He would especially invite your attention to the new treatment of Rheumatism, Arteriosclerosis, Hypertension, and other diseases of the circulatory system. This new method is a new principle applied in a new form—dry heat—the local phenomena can be decidedly altered and quickly cured. If your joints are swollen and stiff and drawn, or if you have given up all hope, I trust that you will make one more effort, and if I do not render you satisfaction it will not cost you a cent. And with the X Ray outfit I am able to make the most scientific diagnosis. I have treated hundreds of people, among whom are some of the leading ministers, lawyers and other business men of the state, and on application can give you hundreds of references to men and women that I have cured after other methods had failed. I am permanently located in the best city in the state, with the very best railroad facilities. People who come from a distance may find best and cheapest accommodations for boarding and lodging. For recreation you can drive on the most beautiful streets and picturesque parks in the country.

Have you investigated the Hot Dry Air Treatment? If not, it will be wise to do so. It is more effective than a trip to the Hot Springs of California, and on account of the higher degree of heat used, is far superior to the mud, vapor or electric baths which you have tried. This method is much used at the noted baths in different parts of Europe, as well as in hospitals and sanitariums in our eastern cities. Noted physicians say that the Thermal Bath is the quickest, easiest and most effective way of purifying the blood known to man. It is conceded by all to be the treatment for Rheumatism, Gout and Kidney Troubles. If burdened with too much flesh this is the only safe way of reducing it. If impurities, it is the only scientific beauty treatment, as it thoroughly tones up the liver and purifies the blood. It will cure catarrh, congestion, cold and is gripper; it will give you a better bath than any water on earth. The treatment is endorsed by all intelligent physicians. We are also graduated in Osteopathy and Electro-Therapeutics—these departments being thoroughly equipped. Call or write for information.
